Patients are paying a price for spending cuts

In this Systems & Services article, doctors and patient advocates across Europe describe how the debt crisis and cuts in public spending are impacting on the care cancer patients receive. Thanks to all our readers who participated in the survey on this topic, the results of which are presented in the article.

What is happening to cancer care in your country?

Are patients suffering as a result of cuts?
Are the authorities working with clinicians on ways to evaluate and improve the efficiency of services to make the best use of resources and maximise value for money?
