

Can we trust the pathology reports that doctors and patients rely on to choose personalised therapy options? This Cutting Edge looks at the things that can go wrong, and at some quality control initiatives that aim to make sure they don't.

What do you think?

- Can you be certain about the quality of the pathology reports that you rely on?
- Is a more systematic approach to quality control required as more and more biomarkers become relevant to treatment decisions?

You can read the article here . Press the comment button at the end and share your views.